

Applied survival analysis notes

Chapter 2: Descriptive methods for survival data

- In the example, no two subjects shared an observation time, and the longest observed time was a failure. Simple modifications to the method described above are required when either of these conditions is not met.